

Seimenoff Acts Justified, Aid Writes Borah

Answering Four Questions of Senator, Kroupsky Says Civilized Warfare Did Not Rule in Siberia

Ataman's Defense Shown

Expected General Will Appear Before Labor Committee Hearing Next Week

Indications of the line of attack against General Semenov by Senator Borah and the Senate Labor Committee, and of the defense that will be offered by the Cossack chieftain, are given in a letter from Senator Borah to Colonel George Kroupsky, made public last night, and in the latter's answer, sent at the same time.

Senator Borah's letter was written on receipt of Kroupsky's telegram requesting an opportunity to present a statement to the committee. It asks an answer to four questions, in order, says the Senator, that he may be guided in the future conduct of the Semenov investigation.

Senator Borah first asked what Semenov's relationship to the Kolchak government. He next requested a copy of the record touching the alleged trial of officers of Semenov's army for the attack on American troops of January 10, 1920. The third question inquired the name of the person responsible for the "slaughterers" referred to in the testimony of several witnesses before the committee, including that of General Graves and Colonel Morrow, and the last one sought to learn the relationship between General Kalmikoff, Levitsky and Bogomolov, all of whom have been accused of atrocities, and General Semenov.

Sketches Siberian Conditions

Colonel Kroupsky, who said yesterday that he expected that the Semenov would be tried before the Senate Committee next week, in his reply last night began by a sketch of conditions in Siberia at the time of the Semenov regime, which he intimated were so complicated that Borah, despite the fact that he has long occupied high position, and has had much experience in American affairs, could have no adequate picture of them.

"Among the many reasons why the fight against the Bolsheviks did not result in their defeat, two principal factors were dominant," declared Kroupsky, "first, the impossibility of securing united action among the great majority of the Russians opposed to the Bolshevik movement, and, particularly, among their officers, and second, the difficulty of those who were at the head of the anti-Bolshevik movement in procuring proper aids in their responsible positions."

These things and the fact that most of the leaders had no personal acquaintance and were usually separated by thousands of miles of territory, are offered by Kroupsky as explanations of the differences of opinion between Semenov and Kolchak, of which much has been made.

Will Show War Photographs

Much of the testimony before the committee, according to Colonel Kroupsky's letter, related to studies alleged to have been committed on the Bolsheviks by the anti-Bolshevik forces. No doubt atrocities were committed on both sides, but the war was a bitter one, it is pointed out, in which the ordinary rules of civilized warfare went by the board, and duly authenticated photographs in the writer's possession will be put in evidence to show that the White atrocities were provoked by Red outrages of such a nature "as would lead any army to acts of reprisal."

Regarding Colonel Morrow's testimony, the letter goes on to charge that "his statements were influenced by a purely personal point of view, and that his judgment was based on insufficient information." Morrow's activities in Siberia, according to Kroupsky, had a very different effect from what he

Peggy Joyce Brings Million in Gems, and Kiss That Is Refused

"Mr. Mellon Won't Let Me," Customs Aid Tells Ex-Star of "Follies" When Offered Caress; Treasure Held Up, Owner Seeks Heart Cure With Mother

Peggy Hopkins Joyce, the former "Follies" girl whose trips from Paris have caused more perplexing thought in the Custom House perhaps than those of any other traveler, came home yesterday on the Cunard liner Mauretania. She was upset generally, and will try to rest her nerves with her mother in Norfolk, Va. The suicide of Guillermo Errazuriz in Paris, the only man, she said, whom she ever loved, was the supreme sorrow that turned her homeward for parental solace.

Peggy was accompanied by jewels worth $1,000,000, and these received a most cordial greeting from the customs officials at Quarantine as soon as their owner was roused from slumber. The pick of the special agent's staff was on the job, and the jewels did not take long for Peggy to realize that they knew an awful lot about her treasure. Private detectives, summoned by the show girl by radio, were on hand, too, to guard her and her jewels.

On the trip up the bay Peggy explained that for all her love affairs and outward frivolity she was a serious-minded person, and undertook to imagine as to the prestige of the United States. "Such propaganda as the newspaper articles referred to as being published in Siberian papers are far less dangerous than the effect of the activities of one in the United States army uniform who, inadequately informed of the situation in which he is placed, commits acts which are misunderstood and which are difficult, if not impossible, to offset later. Unfortunately there were many who would profit by the creation of misunderstanding between Colonel Morrow and the anti-Bolshevik forces, and who were ready and willing to mislead him so as to bring about such clashes as occurred."

Replies to Borah's Questions General Semenov was acting under the authority of Admiral Kolchak from the spring of 1919 until January, 1920, when he turned over his government to Semenov, declares the letter, proceeding to answer Borah's first question.

The incident of the clash between the Americans and the armored train was investigated by Kroupsky himself under Semenov's orders, it is said in answer to the second question. The result was that Captain Popoff, who was the senior captain in responsible command of the Russian troops, was shot, and General Bogomolov, who was in general command of all armored trains, and who happened to be on the train in question at the time, was imprisoned for thirty days.

Knowledge of "slaughterers" is denied in the Kroupsky letter, although the Colonel says that he is familiar with the entire territory. There were, however, places at a distance from habitations where condemned persons were executed, but these were under the direct jurisdiction of the commandant of the place they were located, rather than of Semenov.

Admits Incomplete Control

In answering the inquiry concerning the three generals, the letter to Senator Borah makes what is considered by the Semenov adherents one of the strongest points in the General's defense. First, stating that Kalmikoff operated entirely independently more than a thousand miles distant from Semenov, Kroupsky defines the status of the other two officers as being under the direct control of their corps commanders, and of the army chief, and then only of Semenov.

Furthermore, the letter points out, General Semenov was unable to work with the military organization system, such as was effective in other armies during the war, and his control over the troops who formed parts of

Vardemans Reported to Have Made Clean Breast of Robbery of Securities From the Chase National Bank

Locating Missing Bonds

$30,000 Expected To Be Recovered in Savannah; Similar Amount in New York

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 12.—John Vardeman, alias J. W. Hollis, and Bertha Fern Vardeman have made a "clean breast" of the robbery of the Chase National Bank in New York City of $500,000 in securities, according to detectives who have been working here on the case. They added that the $30,000 worth of bonds still missing probably would be recovered within a few hours.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., May 12.—Local representatives of the Chase National Bank of New York City announced today that John W. Vardeman, alias J. W. Hollis, under arrest in Savannah, in connection with the Chase bank theft, probably would be taken to New York. Earlier plans were to return Vardeman to St. Augustine, where $400,000 worth of the $500,000 stolen bonds were found in a safe deposit box rented in the name of J. W. Hollis.

Pinkerton detectives working on the Chase National Bank theft, yesterday said that they expected to locate today one-half of the $500,000 worth of bonds unrecovered. They referred to thirty $10,000 certificates. The thirty $10,000 bonds and half the face value were taken from her at the point of a pistol in the Loew Building have not yet been traced.

The three $10,000 bonds, it was said, are located in New York. Should they be so located, $400,000 of the $500,000 worth of Liberty bonds that Arthur F. Chase, an employee of the bank, placed in an inside coat pocket while he was helping out the overworked mailman, on a busy night will have been recovered. It was also said that a condition was attached to the recovery of the three bonds, namely, that immunity be granted to Mrs. Vardeman. Whether or not this immunity had been agreed on could not be learned.

Henry Hirsch, diamond dealer, of 1540 Broadway, who was arrested Thursday and released on $30,000 bail following his arraignment on a charge of grand larceny after midnight yesterday in the Night Court, was rearrested this morning. This time he was charged with suspicion of grand larceny. Magistrate Corrigan, in the Tombs Court, renewed the $30,000 bail and set the hearing for May 19.

The police said the evidence against Hirsch thus far other than the statements contained in Chase's confession, the fact that Mrs. Vardeman went to Hirsch a week before the bonds were stolen and asked what he would be willing to pay for Liberty bonds offered on "no questions asked" basis, Hirsch, Chase's confession states, said he would pay $100,000 for the bonds two days before the theft. The woman called on Hirsch again, and on the night they were stolen she called a third time, when she had some bonds with her. The police at 1540 Broadway, the police explained, known as the New York Diamond Traders' Association, are open until 10 o'clock.

The detectives said that Hirsch had been indicted about a year ago as the result of charges following the trial of Liberty bonds, but that the indictment had been dismissed.

Want Vogelgesang Kept At Brooklyn Navy Yard

Appeals to the Navy Department will be made today by United States Senator Calder and Brooklyn Congressmen in an effort to keep Captain C. T. Vogelgesang, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, on duty there. It has been rumored that an order is about to be issued transferring Captain Vogelgesang to Brazil.

Captain Vogelgesang, since coming to the yard as commandant last July, has enjoyed a reputation as a hard worker and a man of high character. The yard force was busy yesterday preparing to ask civic organizations and various Brooklyn business men to urge his retention as commandant.

It is understood that the President of Brazil has asked that Captain Vogelgesang be detailed to South America to assist in reorganizing the Brazilian navy. The navy yard commandant was formerly chief of the Atlantic fleet, and later went to Brazil, where he organized the Brazilian Naval College.

A Mother's Heart Is a Child's Idea of Heaven

It is a very old proverb that cannot be traced that

"One good mother is worth a hundred schoolmasters"

Even the wholly intellectual Napoleon is credited with having said that the future destiny of the child is always the work of the mother.

It is certain that no other influence is more powerful than the mother's in shaping the man's life.

He takes her nature, manners and habits.

Blessed are the mothers who give their all to their children.

BELMAISON

The slender simplicity of Sheraton tables is especially pleasing in dining or living rooms of small country houses or in apartments.

Belmaison has several models, fine reproductions of old pieces, in Cuban mahogany, sometimes inlaid in light mahogany.

The one illustrated is the largest and has two pedestals, so that it may be extended with leaves, to seat ten people. Heavy beaten brass claw feet are a distinctive finish, $450.

Smaller tables with single pedestals, for four or six people, at $140 and $220.

And a still smaller oblong table at $105, or a drop leaf table at $135, have infinite uses in a living room.
